THE LOCATION

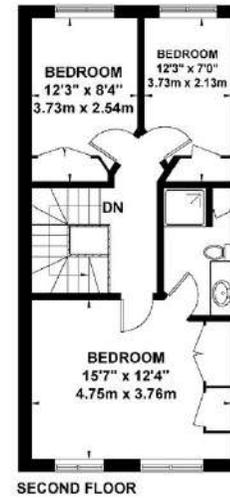

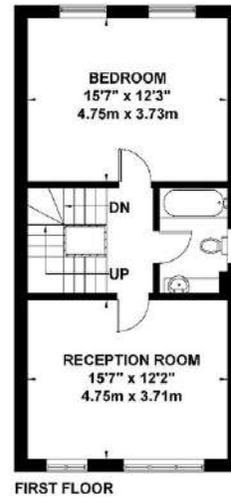

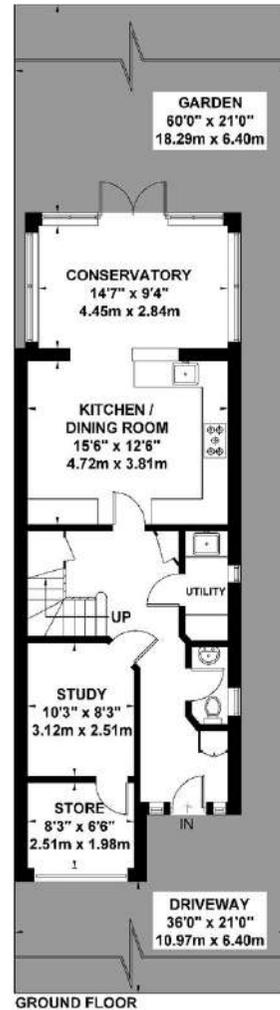

The Royal Park Development is rich in history, boasting the former home of BAE Systems National Aircraft Factory, famed for its production of the Sopwith Camel and Harrier Jump Jet, amongst others. The 38 acre site, nestled along the River Thames, was requisitioned from the Earl of Dysart (of Ham House) under the Defence of the Realm Act, and in operation from 1918 to 1992 before its redevelopment in 1996/7 providing a collection of residential homes.

Camel Grove is located in the heart of the development whilst conveniently for the River Thames, Ham Lands and Ham Parade, whilst Richmond Park's Ham Gate offers over 2,500 acres of Royal parkland to enjoy. Not short of green space, Ham Common is also nearby, whilst access to both Richmond and Kingston centres are incredibly convenient, whilst the property falls within the catchment for a choice of well reputed primary and secondary schools.
